SATURDAY, FEB. 5, 1876.

Onto has eighty-eight counties. Twelve of these have more than 1000,000 sheep. They stand in the following order, as re_ ported by the assessors for 1875: Licking 210,721; Harrison, -174,779; Knox, 143,088; Belmont 141,580; Guernsey, 1 38, 184; Muskinugm, 128,472; Jefferson, 128, 474; Columbiana, 122,828; Carroll, 117,-409; Morrow; 112,248; Coshocton, 110,485; Delaware, 148,248.

What is Said About the Wheel-ing Intelligencer. We publish this week the annual prospectus of the Wheeling WEEKLY INTEL-LIGENCER. It is a journal eminently suited to the wants of the people, espesuited to the wants of the people, espe-cially of this county. We commend it to our readers as worthy of their sup-port,—St. Clairsville Chronicle. Attention is called to the prospectus of the Wheeling Intelligences, to be found in another column. Any of our readers who desire to subscribe for a paper giving them the news of the State, and in general, would do well to send for a specimen copy of the INTELLICENCES, the leading Republican paper of the State.—Wellsburg News.

In another column of this paper may be found the prospectus of the Wheeling WEEKLY INTELLIGENCER. It is by far the best and most enterprising daily in the State. Its weekly issue is also good. If any of our readers desire a newspaper from the northwestern portion of the State, subscribe for the INTELLIGENCER. —Charleston (W. Va.) Journal.

The attention of our readers is directed to the Prospectus of the Wheeling Ix-TELLIGENCER, which we publish this week in our advertising columns. The In-TELLIOKECER is a number one news paper, and, although a Republican in politics, it always pursues a fair and honorable course, for which it deserves commendation above the average Republican journals of the day.—St. Clairwille Gazette,

The advertisement of the Wheeling In-TELLIGENCE will be found in another column. The INTELLIGENCER, notwithstanding a pretty strong rivalry, holds standing a pretty strong revary, now its own as the first paper in the State, in point of the qualities that constitute a first class newspaper; and is so regarded, not withstanding occasional objections, not only by the press but by the reading public interested in West Virginia affairs. We take pleasure in commending it as a reliable as well as an enterprising paper.—Wellsburg Hegold.

We call the attention of our readers to he prospectus of the Wheeling WEEKLY INTELLIGENCER, one of the best papers published in the State. As the year will be one remarkable for "coming events," every man should have a copy of some every man should have a copy of some one of the city papers, and we therefore heartily recommend the INTELLIGENCER as one of the papers to supply the want. Having been one among the first attaches of the INTELLIGENCER, we have always felt an interest in its success, and have always taken occasion to present its merits to our friends. In order to give an opportunity for procuring cheap reading procuring the next year, we offer the Courier and INTELLIGENCER for one year, postage paid, for $3 25. time to subscribe.—Hanceck county Couries.

In another column will be found an advertisement of the Wheeling INTELLIGUENCER, one of the best papers in the State, and a genuine Republican paper, too. Our Wetzel county Republicans paper, too Our Wetzel county Republicans cannot do better than subscribe for the INTELLIGENCER, and especially this year, as the Presidential campaign will soon be upon us, and every voter should post himself in the issues before him. We have taken the INTELLIGENCER for two years, and therefore can speak of its merits. It is a fire paper, keeping, as far as we know, its readers posted in the progress of the day. To our Republican friends, especially of this county, we say, subscribe for the Wheeling INTELLIGENCER, and at the end of the year you will not regret it.—Wetzel Vindicator.

MARK YOUR HEAVEN HERE.—There is no royal road or short cut to heaven. If you wint 'a heaven for yourself in the world to come, prepare it for yourself in the life that is now. You have no reason to think you will enter upon the next life in any wise changed in character from what you are when you leave this. "He that is wholy, let him be holy still." He that is wholy, let him be holy still." And the character with which you leave this world will be the slow and natural growth of the years of your whole earthly life, and cannot be the result of anything else, the teaching of any theology or man to the contrary. The true conception of human existance doubtless is as one in this world and the next—this the rill, that the river; this the dawn, that the day; this the bud, that the flower they is the bud, that the flower they is the bud, that the flower they conception of persons who had died and did not for a considerable time even know they were dead. Their old thoughts and feelings and loves and desires of the earthly life remained, and the world which they had entered did not at first seem different from the one they had left, only it was spiritual lantead of physical. Hence they went on with their old pleasures. Only by degrees did they perceive their change of states—and that as they themselves became, by natural processes of growth and development, capable of deeperer seeing and higher knowledge.—Rev. J. T. Sundariand.

to which her husband had invited the writer. She said:

"Well, you see, Ned came home and told me $10 was the most he could get; it was $40 at Washington; and we talked the matter over and made up our minds it would do somehow—do a good deal better than living off our friends or getting in debt—I wish I could make all young married people fear that awful thing, debt—so I came here and hired these two rooms, which cost us $1.50 per week. The sleeping-room is large enough for our bed and to stow away a few things anugly, while the children sleep on the sofa there. It is a bed lounge, and opens out at night, We haven't hir that one stove, of course, and twenty-five bushels of coke, which costs us three dollars delivered, with care lasts us two months, while we get all the shavings we hirdlings we want at the ofense.

two months, while we get all the shavings and kindlings we want at the cooper shops for carrying them away. Kerosene costs only 16 cents a gallon, and lasts amonth. By taking ten pounds of 'hocks' even when pork is so fighl, we get them at four cents, and they make three or four nice meals a day or two apart, and we have a refrigerator in the hall for keeping perishable food. Ned found where he could get nice pieces of meat, beef, at 5c a pound, if we take ten pounds. We buy it for 'mince-meat,' of course; but out of that amonth we get a seak or two—we have to pound it some to make it tender!—and sometimes we have what the Germans call 'Hamburger steak, that is, the meat chopped fine like sausage. two months, while we get all the shavings beef, at 5e a pound, if we take ten pounds. We buy it for 'mince-meat,' of course; but out of that amount we get a steak or two—we have to pound it some to make it tender!—and sometimes we have what the Germans call Hamburger steak, that is, the meat chopped fine like sausage, flavored delicately with onions, and broiled rapidly; besides 'stews,' 'broils,' and plenty of 'hasb,' which isn't very bad when it's clean and cooked picely. Sometimes I vary the mince-ineat and boll a few pounds, adding a little pork to give it a little delicacy and flavor; boil it all day until it is almost jellied. Then I season it with a little butter, pepper, salt, and just a drop of Halford; set it away in a cloth bag over night, and in the morning we have some of the nicest 'beef cheese', you ever tasted.'

I sampled the "beef cheese," and even after a hearty meal its delicacy substantiated the statement.

"Sometimes, when we are very short of money. Ned resorted to the little fiction of buying five cents' worth of good meat for his cat. We haven't a cat, but we're got four hungry mouths, and the pound or pound and a half of meat we got in that way did us a 'great deal of good, especially if we were a little hungry for meat. You see, if that butcher had known it was for our use, it would have only bought half a pound. But the cat legend always brings a good piece. Sometimes we get so reckless as to have chickens, and even a turkey, but we have to watch the market for these. Just after Thankesgiving I bought eight chickens and a nice turkey down on Market street. It was Saturday evening, the dealer had ten tons on hand, and it had begun to rain, but it snowed before morning, and I had four dollars worth of choice food in the house. Didn't we poor people go for those chickens, though! We make our own bread, and what pastry we can afford to indulge in. Two barrels of good winter wheat flour, which costs, delivered, 57 dollars per barrel, last us just one year.

one cents a week, as a pint a day answer nicely."

I saw that the culinary department was successfully managed, but begged to know how many hundred dollars a year they were obliged to expend for clothing.

"How many hundred dollors? My sakes alive! We haven't spent one hundred in two years."

"We knew that there were thousands of people in a city like this, who, if rightly approached, and given assurance that they were not to be humbugged, had been, and were, more than willing to give the kind of assistance we needed. So Ned went down to the Tribune pffice, and had inserted, under the head of Miscellaenous' last July"—("Sunday, June 20," interrupted Ned, who, from habit, is examinated about dates and figures), "this advertisement, which cost us just eighty cents."

Here Mrs. Ned brought the slip which had been clipped from the Tribune, and which I give as an evidence of the truthfulness of the narative:

Dran Sin—I wrote to you some time since for a bottle of Brentlinger's Flind Extract of Sarvagarilia, and must say that it has acted upon me like; than 1, propaga; two-thirds of the time I wousled with Dyspaga; two-thirds of the time I wousled had given up the fines of ever getting well, and indeed my friends had given up all hopes of my ever getting well again. Added to this, I suffered with Scrotila very much. Since last September one side of any next was one entire sors. The use of one bottle has much improved me; my stomach is apparently relieved; my neck has improved beyond my more tanguing expectations. I feel much encouraged, and think by the use of one or two bottles more is shall be relieved entirely. You will please send me two bottles. I want to give it a fair trial. Send by one of the boats.
